INTRODUCTION

It gives me great pleasure to place in your hands this my book MOGACHI BHETT in the form of a novel. I had often heard great and eminent men say: "Speak Konknni, read Konknni, write Konknni. No doubt all of us speak our mother-tongue Konknni however in tort and crooked way. He who endeavours to speak it correctly, read it and write it correctly, indeed shows his true love and affection to his mother-tongue. To protect and preserve it is the prime duty of each and every Goan and it should be our genuine endeavour to maintain its status on the highest literary stage. This novel is the first of its kind. In it is presented the greatest and complete story ever written in Konknni. It is a suspense thriller, emotionally woven, The reader will not be able to contain tears in his welled eyes without shedding them. I hope that it will make an interesting reading.

OPINION

In the literary world, a good author wraps up the core thoughts of his novel with a honeyed cover story. This has been very successfully achieved in this novel MOGACHI BHETT. It's cover story is so beautifully and emotionally woven that while reading it you must have a bucket by your side to collect the sweet tears that trickle down your cheeks. The cover story is a narration of the poppy love that commonly erupts between a boy and a girl in their teen-aged college days. And sometimes they even promise on oath of its fruition to matrimony. More often than not they meet such steep hurdles that they are forced to aban-don their project, and this because sometimes their parents play the fiddle driven by their own selfish ambitions of pride and prejudice, that over-rides others' right to self-determination viz. the obstinacy of the parents of the girl in upholding her choice of her matrimonial partner, Bselfish ambition to import status by acquiring a professionally esta-blished son-in-law, and hipocracy in reverting to the first choice of their daughter after their own choice fumbles dramatically due to insin-cerity of the person of their choice. This is what exactly the author exposes in his cover story. But deep in the core of the story, the author so beautifully exposes the ills that beseech our modern day society Simultaneously the author very successfully depicts the silver lining that still encircles the dark clouds of today's malaise - viz the genuine efforts of the doctors (despite their hypocritical oath), the parish priest,(though their number is reduced to 2%) assistance of the siblings themselves 'to each other, and the assistance of neighbours and friends, (though most of these delight in the afflictions of others) . It is evident from the contents of the novel that the author is a God-fearing person and he exhorts that faith in God can indeed move mountains.
